There was clearly some confusion about the standard of clip art. This caused a number of mispunches.

I accept that the "maid" picture could be confused with the "lady", however the "lady" could not be confused with the "maid". A similar problem arose with the calling birds and french hens.

A case of more speed less haste, strange how even in a social setting like this, our competitive urge takes over and doesn't allow us to study all of the images properly.

Therefore well done for all those who took time to correctly identify all the images and apologies to everyone else for the confusing clipart. I will try harder next year. Season's Greetings to you all.
